Redeem General Obligation Transit Bonds: Resolution 2024-16

Proposed Action

The Metropolitan Council adopt Resolution 2024-16 providing for the redemption of outstanding General Obligation Transit Capital and Refunding Bonds Series 2012C and General Obligation Transit Refunding Bonds Series 2012H, including the incurrence of related redemption expenses, and execution of necessary redemption documents.

Background

In 2012, the Council issued $52,000,000 General Obligation Transit Capital and Refunding Bonds Series 2012C and $24,624,000 General Obligation Transit Refunding Bonds Series 2012H. Both bond series are currently callable, meaning the Council has the option to redeem (pay-off) these bonds at any time. Original final maturity dates are 3/1/2032 for Series 2012C and 2/1/2028 for Series 2012H. Series 2012C and 2012H are the only outstanding Transit bonds that are currently callable

Outstanding balances to be redeemed on 10/1/2024 are $9,965,000 of Series 2012C and $2,965,000 of Series 2012H. Accrued interest will be paid to bondholders up to the redemption date.

Redeeming these bond series would result in future interest cost savings. Redemption would result in future interest cost savings of $1,472,112 for Series 2012C and $190,431 for Series 2012H.

Transit debt service fund balances will be used to fund both redemptions. Fund balances have accumulated across the totality of Transit debt service funds over time from higher interest earnings and the 5% over levy required by state statute. The Council's Financial Advisor has recommended using debt service fund balances and redeeming these bonds.

Rationale

Redeeming these two bond issues will reduce future interest costs on Transit debt.

Thrive Lens Analysis

Redeeming these two bond issues demonstrates Stewardship over the Council's financial resources by managing our debt service fund balances and saving future interest costs.

Funding

Transit debt service fund balance.

Small Business Inclusion

There are no direct impacts to small business inclusion associated with the proposed action.
