Pile driving work is nearly completed

As work at the new lift station site continues, crews are almost finished with pile driving and sheet installation activities. Pile driving began in mid-October and is expected to be completed in mid-January.

Once pile driving is completed, excavation for the new lift station and other construction activities for the building will begin.

All work is weather permitting. When temperatures get too cold crews are unable do some construction activities.